The European Commission grants Protected Geographical Indications (PGI) Status to Bosnia and Herzegovina's Iconic "Livno Cheese" (Livanjski sir)

Livno cheese is the first Western Balkan food to achieve EU protection!

Livno cheese, a hard, full-fat cheese made from cow's milk, sheep's milk, or a blend of both, is renowned for its slightly sweet, nutty flavor and distinctively piquant aroma. Its exceptional character stems from livestock grazing on the fragrant pastures of the Livno region in western Bosnia, shaped by the unique interplay of Mediterranean and continental climates.

With over a century of tradition, the art of Livno cheese-making has been carefully preserved and passed down through generations, ensuring its unparalleled quality. Protected by the PGI designation, Livno cheese embodies not only its extraordinary flavor but also its deep connection to the region's climate, pastures, and time-honored production methods.
